MESSAGE

The Young people of the world must realize that there are great changes ahead, and they must plan and act accordingly. The terms "conservatism", "internationalism", "socialism", "isolationism", and many others we are using today will in future years be smothered in broader concepts and by greater events. The so-called "spheres of influence" of nations, which are in reality to them nothing more or less than their natural defense, will unquestionably remain; for the fact is that nations must continually plan and do those things which are for their own protection.

As the people of the various nations intermingle they will exchange ideas; from these will be born new ideas; and cities, communities, states, and nations will be influenced. Out of it will come a desire for a better informed public in all nations. A desire in each to know more about what the people of the others are doing, a desire to learn more about their customs, their language, their entire mode of living. And, we hope, there will come a desire in all peoples for greater liberty, a more perfect "Democracy".

SENIORS

In the year 1941 we came to Everett High to prepare for the climbing of the ladder of success. We seemed to be a promising group for the future.

Our class officers for that year were Robert Latta, Shirley Weicht, and Sara Jane Hershberger.

We entered into our Sophomore year with much enthusiasm and took everything in our stride. We elected the following class officers: Victor Barton, John Caro, Richard Van Horn, and Pauline Snyder.

Special events of that year included a skating party at Cypher Beach and the production of the class play, "Comin' Round the Mountain".

When we entered school as jolly Juniors, we had our aims set higher than ever before. We realized that we had climbed a few steps of Life's ladder since we entered as Sophomores, and we were just a little nearer the heights, but still had some climbing to do. We began to realize more fully that those days were merely stepping stones to the monument we hoped some day to erect as a reward of our own labor.

Our class officers that year were: Mary Lou Burket, Sara Jane Hershberger, and Howard Ruby.

We must not forget our Junior class play, "Double Door", that brought much enjoyment to the audience.

In September 1944 we entered Everett High School for the last time but this time as Seniors. We elected the following class officers: Victor Barton, Robert Troutman, and Suzanne Rearick.

The Senior play, "Lady, Be Good", starred Carolyn Mobus and Paul Myers.

Sara Jane Hershberger captained the girls to another basketball championship.

Our Senior year was well spent, and progress was normal. We have a vision of accomplishing bigger things. We have done our best just as hundreds of others have done in the past and others will do in the future. We filled our place, and in that our duty was done. We are merely a link in the procession of classes entering and leaving Everett High.

We are now standing on the threshold of a new life. Our visions are beckoning us to move forward into untried pleasures and experiences; yet we linger when it is ours to cast a farewell glance back over our most pleasant and most profitable high school days.

"FUTURAMA"

As all typical American boys and girls, we were graduated from our Alma Mater and stepped out into the wide world to find for ourselves a future.

After several years have passed, let us take a day and visit the boys and girls of the class of "45".

We left word with the desk clerk, Maxine Wigfield, at our hotel that we wished to be called the following morning at an early hour. Mr. Donald King, manager of our hotel, awakened us early to see us on our way. To our amazement, we found Anthony Masciocchi operating the elevator. Adding to our surprise, we discovered Kenton Harclerode waiting in the lobby to act as bell-hop.

Stepping outside, we hailed a taxi driven by Austin Ritchey. We directed him to take us to the airport. Through the loudspeaker of the taxi radio we heard the voice of Richard Blackburn bringing to us the news of the day from Station A. Y. W.

Arriving at the airport, we found we had time to order a bite to eat. Betty Miller, hostess at the airport restaurant, accommodated us. We were then given weather and flying information by Kenneth Clouse. Boarding the airliner, we found Vernon Northcraft to be our pilot and Robert Whisel to be our co-pilot.

We spent the forenoon conversing with Loren Miller who was returning from a trip to Mexico. At noon we were served lunch by Betty Means, airline hostess. The afternoon was spent in scanning the newspaper where to our amazement we discovered many familiar names of the class of "45". This is what we found:

Miss Mary Lou Burket, world famous violinist, will make her first appearance in the United States following her world-wide tour.

"Out of This World", a new shop in home decoration, was opened on Fifth Avenue by Madame Rocksbilt, the former Shirley Avey.

Miss Peggy England, Daredevil of the Autos, gave a thrilling performance to millions at Madison Square Garden, Thursday evening.

Guest soloist at the opening of "Carmen" at the Metropolitan will be Miss Genevieve May, the famous vocalist.

Dr. Paul T. Myers, formerly of the Mayo Clinic, has opened a new laboratory in Boston for research in cancer.

The Pulitzer Prize for 1960 was captured by Prof. John Bertram for his brilliant novel, Brains to Lend.

Finding nothing more of interest to us, we laid the newspaper aside and decided to refresh ourselves with a glass of milk which we discovered came from the Robert Felton Dairy Farms. While sipping the drink, we gazed below and saw the poultry farm of Marvin Clark and waved at Franklin Hersberger as he cultivated his fine-looking crop of corn. To our amazement we learned from a fellow passenger that Raymond Gordon and Linwood Mearkle also owned many of the farms over which we were passing.

During a three hour stop in New Orleans we alighted from the plane only to find our hostess for the remainder of the trip to be Ruth Clark, our pilot, Coy Pee, and our co-pilot, Donald Sponsler. Three hours passed quickly for we visited with old friends, Marjorie Eshleman, a school teacher in New Orleans, and Doris and Shirley Harclerode, busy operators of the Harclerode Beauty Shop. We also recognized William England as proprietor of the largest and newest drug store in New Orleans. Sara Jane Hersberger was his most efficient secretary. We also met John Caro, a very successful business man.

Boarding our plane once more, we were delighted to find Captain Harry Calhoun of the Marines and Admiral Richard Felton of the Navy as fellow passengers. We learned from Richard that he had just visited with Betty Pepple, an expert X-ray technician and had passed Gene Vance, now a naval officer, on his way to the airport.

At last we reached our destination, Washington, D. C., where to our pleasure we met five stenographers from the Pentagon Building—Lela Price, Betty Redinger, Ethel Mellot, Mary Lou Imes, and Jean Winck who were boarding the plane for a vacation in sunny California.

We caught a bus and found our driver to be Bryce Means. As we rode to our hotel, we noticed the "Posy" Store run by Frances Greenawalt and Allegra Furry and an electric shop owned by Richard Van Horn.

At our hotel we found waiting for us a copy of the Everett Press sent to us by the editor, Pauline Snyder.

Again the newspaper was our source of delight, and the news from back home contained much of the doings of the class of "45". We read that Miss Vashti Mellot had accepted the position as commercial teacher at the Everett High School. William Bucher was chemical engineer for Westinghouse. Doris Gordon has been put in charge of the nursing staff at the Everett Hospital with Irene Arvin and Sara Goodrich as her assistants. Louise Hershberger had been appointed librarian of the town library. In the personal column we read that Mr. and Mrs. William Felton of Baltimore were week-end visitors at Breezewood. Mrs. William Felton will be remembered as the former Arlene Jay. Miss Phyllis Smith has returned from vacation to her position as clerk in the American Store. Mr. Henry Rinard, F. B. I. Investigator, has spent a few days with his parents. We also noticed the advertisement of a new dress shop opened by Louise Shipley and Marie Nelson.

Later strolling down the avenue we noticed the bright lights of a theatre flashing the name of Carolyn Mobus. Just beyond the theatre we came to a book shop owned by John McFarland. We then met Shirley Weicht and Martine Felton and learned that Shirley was private secretary to Curtis Rohm, President of the United States, and that Martine Felton was nurse for the President's family. From them we also learned that Victor Barton was President of Yale University, and that Clara Miller was at the present time in Switzerland.

Finding ourselves hungry we selected a modern-looking restaurant which, to our astonishment, was owned by Robert Latta. Robert Troutman was "chief cook and bottle washer", Betty Long was head waitress, and Ruth Hershberger was dietician. Across from us we noticed Mr. and Mrs. Red Barndollar. Mrs. Barndollar was formerly Evelyn Fitzwater. Talking with them we found that Miss Arlene Kegg was running the "Love Lorn Column" in the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Across the street we discovered Harold Weicht in charge of his own travel bureau. There we bumped into Marjorie Foor and Velma Crawford, and learned that they were planning a trip to Hawaii. Further down the street we discovered John Morgret, a gunner on a P. T. Boat, home on leave. He told us he was on his way to visit Ray Sollenberger, owner of the Sollenberger Garage, in Philadelphia. After leaving John we noticed a nursery and found it to be directed by Louise Smith and Freda King. From them we learned that Betty Cooper was first alto on the "Hour of Charm" program. We also learned from them that Betty Baker was model for Pond's complexion cream and that Mildred Diehl was athletic instructor at the Altoona High School.

On our way back to the hotel we saw Marian Dodson on the street. She told us that Suzanne Rearick was at present Dean of Women at Breneau College for Women, and that she was Miss Rearick's private secretary. From her we also learned that Betty Karns was now the school nurse in the Everett Schools. John Barkman is also teaching mathematics there. We also learned that Earl Calhoun was proprietor of the Everett Bottling Works.

Quite satisfied with our report on the Class of "45" we were ready to enjoy a good night's rest.

JUNIORS

Looking at us now one would never dream that only a few years previous we were known by everyone as "Those Freshmen". We took part in what organizations were open to us as Freshmen, and a number of us managed to make the honor roll each six weeks. By the end of our first year we were on our way to success.

Keeping up the good work of our Freshmen year, our Sophomore year passed quickly by, and we were enthusiastically looking forward to our Junior year.

We entered school last September as no longer Sophomores but as jolly Juniors. Our aims were higher than ever before.

Our class was now well reorganized with Michael Caro, President; Dale Foor, Vice-President; and Jeanne Gibboney, Secretary-Treasurer.

The most important event of our Junior year was the presentation of our three-act play, "Spring Green". The performances of all the members of the class who participated in the play will long be remembered.

Our class also turned out in good number at the annual Junior-Senior Prom.

With the passing of our Junior year, we realize that we have only one more year to spend in Everett High, and we hope that we shall make it the most successful.

SOPHOMORES

When we entered school last September, we felt quite grown up, and much more experienced than when we entered the previous year. We were ninety-four in number and all of us were eager to make it a very successful year.

Joie LeVan was elected as our President; Robert Bailey, Vice-President; Duane Gochmour, Secretary; and Duane Foor, Treasurer.

We wasted no time in taking part in the various school organizations. Some of us showed our talent for music; others showed talent for dramatics, and a number of us, both boys and girls, proved that we were quite definitely talented in athletics.

We must not forget our roller skating party at Cypher Beach in October. All those that were present had a wonderful time, and it will not soon be forgotten.

Although we can look back over our Sophomore year with many pleasant memories, we hope to make our Junior year even bigger and better than our two previous years.

FRESHMEN

September 1944 found us at Everett High's doors for the first time. We were just like any other Freshmen class, somewhat bewildered in our new surroundings but eager to make it a very successful and worthwhile year.

After a short time we organized our class and elected the following officers: William Caro, President; Myron Wilt, Vice-President; and John Ritchey, Secretary-Treasurer.

We became interested in the various activities of the school and entered into them wholeheartedly without hesitation.

We also took quite seriously the business of learning and taking our place in the school. We had our first big experiment in living and in getting along with other people.

We have made many mistakes in the past year and I suppose we have often tested the patience of our teachers, but we are going ahead with the knowledge that we probably will not make those mistakes again.

We have learned that education can be fun and worthwhile and are looking brightly ahead to our next three years in E. H. S.

This group is responsible for writing all the material included in this book. Each year a new Warrior staff is selected from members of the Senior class. With the beginning of the second semester they work spending several months on the pictures, the articles, and the arrangement. You can see for yourself the result of their labor. The Senior class of 1945 can well be proud of this yearbook.

PARROT STAFF

One of the main activities of the high school is the publishing of the school paper, the Parrot. This group meets every week to write about the exciting events, the gossip, and the opinions of the students and faculty.

However, the Parrot staff not only keeps the students posted on the current events of the school but also sponsors matinees and dances. This year Jimmy Andrew's Orchestra was the main feature of the Holiday Hop and we might add that the mistletoe was the next highest feature of the dance. Another gala event was the Valentine Dance where the King and Queen of Hearts, Suzanne Rearick and Robert Latta, presided.

Two hundred and fifty copies of the Parrot are printed every month and distributed to the students, faculty, and alumni.

The Parrot is quite an important organization and is a great benefit to our school.

We owe much to our Student Council. It is this group that is responsible for the discipline of the students and the appearance of the building.

The members of the Student Council are those students that are considered outstanding not only in scholastic standing but also in leadership and character. They are elected by a majority vote from each of their respective classes.

Aside from the Council's student government, they also provide various activities for the students. Around Hallowe'en time, ghosts, goblins, and skeletons could be seen running at large around the school auditorium. This was the night of the Hallowe'en Party. Both of these school activities were largely attended and greatly enjoyed by the students and faculty.

The Council donated three dozen records for the school's movie projector. They also promoted a Clean-Up Campaign which helped to brighten up our school's appearance.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

An organization which had its beginning in Everett High School just last year was the National Honor Society. It is a nation-wide Society established in schools all over the United States.

“Lady, Be Good” was the outstanding performance of the year in Everett High School. The Senior class presented this three-act comedy on November 30 and December 1 in the high school auditorium. Carolyn Mobus did a marvelous job in portraying her role as the leading lady.

In celebration of their successful performance the play cast traveled to Hershey, Pennsylvania, to view the “Ice Capades of 1945”.

The second great achievement of this club was the Junior play, “Spring Green”. The Juniors were superb in their portrayal of this three-act comedy and we will certainly look forward to their senior play of next year.

A Scrapbook was filled with all the news articles that the group had written during the school term.

The meetings were held in the Home Economics room with a program prepared by the program committee.

“Strike up the music”—here comes the E. H. S. Band.

The band is composed of students from all of the classes and contains many talented musicians.

All year the band furnished “snappy” marches for assembly programs, but their most outstanding achievement was their excellent performance at the Spring Concert. Several of the selections which they rendered were “The Wagnerian March”, “Varsity Victory”, and “Field of Honor”.

TRIPLE TRIO

One of Everett High School's newest additions is the Triple Trio.

"Ave Maria", sung in Latin, with Genevieve May as soloist, was one of their foremost selections given at the Spring Concert.

STRING ENSEMBLE

This small group of stringed instruments was one of the main features of the Spring Concert in May. Even though the group is small, they played excellent music and their motto is "the best things sometimes come in small packages".

The largest organization in the High School is this choral group composed of one hundred girls.

The chorus provided the music for the Program at Christmas. At the Spring Concert held in May they sang several very beautiful selections, two of which were "Indian Love Call" and "Barcarolle".

Later in the year several of the girls were chosen from this group to combine with the boys in forming a mixed chorus.

With a membership of sixty girls from the Junior and Senior classes, the Tri-Hi-Y is one of the leading organizations of the school.

This group entertained the student body by putting on an amateur show for an assembly program and in April presented a Style Show to the town.

Four delegates were sent to the Conference at California, Pa., and in May delegates were sent to the State Conference at Harrisburg.

During February and March a Bible Study was conducted under the supervision of Reverend Swank. The group was chosen by the State Representative to conduct the Installation Services at Roaring Spring.

Social events included the initiation party where nearly twenty students under the direction of the old members were initiated into the club. In December the group went Christmas caroling around the town and brought joy to many invalided persons.

This group of boys achieved much during the current year.

They also conducted a Bible Study during February and March along with the Tri-Hi-Y and the Junior Tri-Hi-Y.

Approximately eighty girls from the freshmen and sophomore rooms meet each week in activity's period.

In the fall, induction services were held in our school auditorium and a large group of about fifty girls were inducted. Following the induction services, refreshments were served and a good time was enjoyed by all.

In the spring "The State Bible Study Course" was conducted by Rev. Swank.

Later in the summer we expect to send three members from this organization to a Tri-Hi-Y Camp.

RIFLE CLUB

Fifty members of the Rifle Club have been meeting every Monday during this past year.

During the winter spot practice was held in the gym. This taught the members to shoot in the prone position. In the spring targets were set up at the Indian Seats. The highest scorer will go to Somerset and enter the competition there.

Mr. Will, the faculty advisor, has been most patient in teaching us more and better ways in shooting and taking care of a rifle.

Everett High School has acquired quite a large library. Each year new books are added so that the latest information can be obtained by the students.

In addition to the books the daily paper and several current magazines are purchased for the library.

This small group of Librarians have no small job in selecting new books, keeping the library in order, and marking the books for the students. They deserve much credit.
